To Whom It May Concern:

It is time for this needless litigation against Microsoft to end. As a consumer, I am glad that Microsoft continues to innovate and push the industry to provide better products that work together and meet my growing needs. The other companies need to either innovate or get out of the way. Microsoft does not have a monopoly on new ideas or better engineering. They just listen better and deliver to the consumer. My vote is to end this time wasting, money wasting litigation and let the free market work.

I do not work for Microsoft or have any connection with Microsoft other than as a consumer of their products. I don't even own stock in Microsoft, even though I wish I did.

Thanks,

David Samuels
